OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON, D. C. Nov 5 1866

The subject of conversation in all circles to-day is the Baltimore imbroglio. Here at the Capital the curiosity respecting the elections in New York, New Jersey and other States is borne down almost out of sight by the intense and all devouring anxiety respecting the contest between the old and the new Police Commissioners in Baltimore. The Copperheads were badly disappointed Saturday night by the wonderful success of the Radicals. Gov Swann, Montgomery Blair and President Andrew Johnson had a mournful time of it Saturday night. Swann and Blair came down here in great haste to consult with their master and friend. The force here concocted this whole scheme which certainly is a disgrace to the President. What business has he with the affairs of a loyal State? Yet for a fortnight he has been in constant intercourse with Swann, Blair and the leading Copperheads of Baltimore. It is precisely as if he were a coarse politician instead of President of the United States.

The Radicals of Maryland have shown great tact in their management of this entire matter—whether they succeed or not. They have very wisely refrained from any resistance to the proper authorities keeping law on their side at every step. They were advised at one time to come to open war with the Governor, resisting even the United States troops with the President at their head but they refused to act upon such dangerous counsel.

Gen Grant has acted with extreme reluctance in this whole matter. He has not repeated interviews with the old police commissioners and assured them that he could not and would not take any part for or against them his object being simply to execute the peace. On Friday night he told the President distinctly that the military (in his opinion) could not be used to drive the old commissioners from office, but that the Courts of Maryland must settle that question. He held that Gov Swann could not call upon the army of the United States to do police duty in Baltimore or to eject any set of men from office. In case of rioting in Baltimore such as the Governor could not put down with the State troops, he could ask the intervention of United States troops. Since that time there has been something akin to coolness between the President and Gen Grant for the President finds that he cannot rely upon this popular General to carry out all his plans against the Radicals. No doubt Grant has been ready to go to Baltimore at all times to preserve the peace—he is there at this moment—but he has had no sympathy with the men who have from the outset of this movement desired only to overthrow the Radical rule in Maryland.

The Republican of this city, which enjoys the confidence of the President to an unusual degree has been publishing an exceedingly significant series of articles—leaders—of late upon the power and the duty of the President towards Congress. Notice what it says

"As before stated, when any power not strictly legislative on its character is conferred upon Congress it is done in express terms. The power to admit new States is of this description. This power is not expressly given by the Constitution, but we look in vain through that instrument to find any power which authorizes Congress to expel a State from the Union which has been once admitted. No such power is given, on the contrary in express terms as we have already seen it is declared no State without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the Senate, and it is worthy of note this imperative prohibition is found in the fifth article, which provides the mode and manner of amending the Constitution of the United States. The fact that resistance was made in the name of a State, by any combination of its citizens, however numerous they may have been cannot have the effect of destroying its political existence or of affecting its rights in any respect because their action, call it secession or rebellion against the Constitution and laws of the United States, or by whatever name you please, is in conflict with that provision of the sixth article already quoted, which declares that the Constitution of the United States and the supreme law of the land, anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding. Therefore, the ordinance of secession intended by its framers to sever the relations of the State, with the Union, must be null and void and an attempt at usurpation, and for the same reason

We have already seen that the President is required to swear that he will preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States to the best of his ability, and that among the duties specially imposed on him is this: he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

Is, in the Constitution which declares that all legislative power is vested in the Congress of the United States, it is the Constitution which declares how that Congress shall be organized, and of what it shall consist to wit: two Senators from each State, and at least one Representative. When for any cause Congress denies to a State this right of representation, in the Senate and House it violates the Constitution, which is the supreme law of the land. Whose duty is it to see that the laws are faithfully executed? Is this duty less imperative when it is the usurpation of the Congress itself of the State of South Carolina?

There is considerable speculation in Washington circles respecting the authorship of the letter. It is well known that the editor of the Republican did not write it and it is clear that some lawyer of considerable pretensions to ability did write it. I have heard it suggested that Mr Browning wrote it, but this is not possible. Taken in connection with the startling announcement in the Philadelphia Ledger a few weeks ago there articles are important. They indicate (to my mind) that the President is debating this whole subject and that he is considering the propriety of using force against the present, or the next Congress. That is my reading of these articles—and it is impossible for me to read them in any other way. Gen Sherman is going to Mexico with Gen Campbell—that is settled. There is some laughing over the matter, for Campbell as is well known, is a very hard whisky drinker, in fact, is frequently drunk at the hotel. So Mr Johnson does not feel that he can trust his Minister and sends Sherman along to keep him straight as well as to take a look at the military situation. The two men are to find the Juarez government, and are not to pay the slightest attention to Maximilian and his usurpations. This is well enough perhaps though Gen Campbell is a queer character for such an errand. In point of fact Gen Sherman will do the work.

It is not a little surprising that Mr Seward should have got bold enough for this act, but I have got reasons for believing that he is not at the bottom of it, but it is the President who perceives that he must do or submit to make himself popular. Gen Grant is well pleased with the new movement towards Mexico, for as is well known, he has always been an enemy of Maximilian and the schemes of Louis Napoleon.

We have finally a solution of the muddled question of the trial of Jeff Davis. The charge of Judge Underwood to the District Court of Norfolk contains the solution. He says

"There is now a strong probability that the United States Circuit Court will be held on the fourth Monday of this month at Richmond for the purpose merely to meet and then adjourn. Chief Justice Chase has given it as his opinion that there is no impediment in the way of holding the Court and being presided over by the District Judge.

When the Supreme Court meets in December the first duties attended to by the Supreme Judges will be to make the proper assignment of judges to the different circuits. In June last the circuits were altered, and one abolished entirely.

Judge Chase has consulted with the Supreme Judges in regard to the action of Congress at the last session respecting the Circuit Courts and ascertaining that the views coincide with his own will not preside over the circuit of held this month in Richmond but will await the assembling of the Supreme Court and then make the formal assignment of the judges.

MINGLING IN POLITICS.—Gen Horace C. Lee declined the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor in Massachusetts on the ground that he did not wish to mingle in politics where upon the Boston Traveler remarks. That should not have deterred him. A man don't mingle in politics much by accepting a Democratic nomination in this State."

DATES TO DECEMBER 7.

Diplomatic Correspondence about Mexico

CHICAGO, Dec 7.—The following official correspondence concerning Mexico is published on Buchanan to Seward.

Legation of the United States, Paris, May 15th 1866.—Sir: I translate from La France of last evening the following announcement. The embarkation of the troops of the Austrian volunteers for Mexico has been countermanded and the troops entered have been disarmed. The majority of them have been enrolled in the army of the North. I suppose I may consider that this paragraph in a semi official paper as practically answering the enquiry which I addressed to the Minister of Foreign Affairs on Thursday as finally disposing of what threatened to become an unpleasant complication. Apropos of our relations with Mexico and in reference to this subject I extracts from the Memorial Diplomatique semi official and from the Debats official post I send Almonte who was appointed by Juarez Republic Minister to this court as representative of Mexico has arrived.

I am, sir, with great respect,
Your obedient servant
JOHN BIGELOW

(Signed)

The enclosure No 1 from the Memorial Diplomatique May 15 according to a Ministerial letter published in the Times says the Minister of the United States at Paris recently suggested to the Cabinet of Washington that for the purpose of arresting military reprisals in Mexico the Juarez Government should be informed of the limit within which the French army of occupation should withdrawn.

M. Drouyn de l'Huys declined this overture for the reason that the French Government had no means of communicating with President Juarez at length Mr. Bigelow received from the Cabinet of the Tuileries the good offices of his Government near which he is accredited the Juarez agent, Romero. The receipt of which this last from the Minister of Foreign Affairs of France is found in term, in the Peuple Journal of 15th inst. We

The Daily Oregonian.

MONDAY MORNING DEC 10 1866

Information Furnished

We dislike to be compelled to be continually exposing the deliberate and shameless falsehoods of the rebel paper round the corner,' but we must perform this duty at least one time more

In our issue of Saturday we said that President Johnson had no right to promise that Senators and Representatives from the rebel States should be admitted into Congress The rebel paper says that the President in making this engagement promised no more than the Constitution authorized him to promise Now most people are under the impression that by the 5th section of the First Article of the Constitution, Congress has the exclusive right to decide who are qualified and who are not qualified to sit as members in the national legislature

But let this pass The rebel organ further says that Mr Lincoln in his amnesty proclamation of 1862 (1863?) made the same promise that Mr Johnson has given —that is to say that members from the Southern States should be received into Congress whenever they should present themselves and ask for admission Here is what Mr Lincoln said in that proclamation "To avoid misunderstadding it may be proper to say that * * * whether members sent to Congress from any State shall be admitted to seats rests exclusively with the respective Houses and not to any extent with the Executive " This was Mr Lincoln's position on this subject He was far too wise a man to compromise and embarrass himself by making the promise which the Copperhead organ attributes to him On the contrary he especially disclaimed any right or any power to make such a promise He took especial care to insert in his proclamation the language we have quoted above —expressly as he himself said, "to avoid misunderstanding" Not only therefore did he not give this promise which it is admitted Johnson has given, but in the most carefully chosen language he expressly stated that he could promise nothing of the kind

Again, the rebel organ says that Mr Seward, at the instance of Mr Lincoln, directed our foreign ministers to assure other Governments " that the insurgents were invited to occupy the seats in Congress which they had vacated, whenever they would lay down their arms and return to their allegiance " Here again is the documentary authority on the subject Mr Seward, in February, 1865, by direction of Mr Lincoln, sent a dispatch to Mr Adams, our Minister in England, in which he said "The President assured the other party (the rebels) that he would be prepared, so far as power lodged with the Executive, to exercise liberality. Its power, however, is limited by the Constitution, and, when peace should be made Congress must necessarily act in regard to appropriations of money, and to the admission of representatives from the insurrectionary States " Does all this look as if Mr Lincoln had engaged that the members from the rebel States should be admitted into Congress whenever they should present themselves asking for admission?

It will be seen that it is the rebel organ that stands in need of information But badly as it needs information, it needs a spirit of honesty and truthfulness far more We have furnished its editor with the information he calls for but it is a task beyond human power and (not to speak profanely,) we fear beyond divine power also, to make him truthful and honest.

DOLEFUL VOICES —The Northern Copperheads are not the only persons who have been looking forward with a hope that A. Johnson would, by a bold stroke, defeat his opponents and accomplish the deliverance of the rebels and the Democratic party The Southern papers teem with expressions quite as furious as any with which the Copperhead press abounds The Columbia (S C) Press wants the President to proclaim himself Dictator It argues that "a Dictatorship is feasible and possible What has been done before can be done again, and there is no reason to doubt that the American people would submit to a Dictator with as good grace and as much enthusiasm as ever did those of other countries President Johnson as Dictator, with a view to crush out Radicalism and to restore the Union to its former unity, power and greatness, would have little difficulty in carrying out his proclamation and his programme There would be no lack of bayonets and swords to to sustain the Dictator" This is genuine Democratic talk, and might easily be mistaken for the utterances of some of their Oregon journals The following from the Gazette, published at Lexington, Kentucky, is to the same purpose, but its conclusion is in a strain that is wofully ludicrous The Gazette is speaking of the reported probability of the President refusing to recognize Congress

It was telegraphed from Washington on Wednesday night that the President had submitted to the Attorney General several interrogatories as to the validity of the present Congress, and what he as a sworn officer ought to do in the premises This information sent a thrill of joy and hope throughout the conservative party of the country and a corresponding consternation among the Radicals, but we are sorry to say it has been contradicted If such a thing could be, and if the President would act, as common sense and common prudence would dictate he could yet be master of the situation We greatly fear that he is not equal to the situation, and that he will yet suffer himself to be degraded and the country disgusted by his weakness The Radicals are even now drawing articles of impeachment and he steadily by and permits the worst traitors to remain in his Cabinet, and lets the conspiracy gain headway His blunder is equal to any crime ever committed under the sun, and he hardly deserves anything but contempt A man in his situation would not only save himself but would save the country also

Were men ever before so outraged by the pusillanimity of their leader?

The New York Tribune says that Hon John L Thomas, of the Second Maryland District had a conversation with Gen Grant a short time before the late elections in which the latter explicitly and voluntarily took ground in favor of the constitutional amendment and declared it would be fatal to the South if they refused to adopt it. In all of Mr Thomas' speeches prior to the elections he gave the particulars of this conversation in which Gen Grant gave him this unqualified assurance

The steamship Great Republic built at New York for the Pacific Mail Company to be run on the China line was launched at New York on the 7th of November The length of the steamer is 380 feet extreme width of beam, 50 feet depth of hold 31½ feet He engines will comprise a 105 inch cylinder, with 12 foot stroke,

The New York Tribune speaking of the Massachusetts election says "A few Copperheads and negroes are elected to the Legislature but not enough of either to do any harm"

The vote in Speaker Colfax's District in the October election was 38 000 This is the largest vote ever polled in any district in the United States

The population of China at the last census was ascertained to be 414 689 964 This is more than one-third of the population of the globe

The President's message has not a word about the only question now before the country —the proposed constitutional amendment

The Radical Unionists polled about one-fourth of the votes of North Carolina in the gubernatorial election in October

The New York Herald a paper which though utterly devoid of principle sometimes evinces judgment and political sagacity said of the Copperhead platform of the State of New York, just before the election

"The "Union as it was with partisans as they were is the attempt of absurd ideas We might as well talk of the restoration of the Bourbons as they were in France before the reign of terror or of Napoleon and Herculaneum as they were people and all before the fiery eruption in which they were buried No! The dead must await the trumpet of Gabriel We have had a terrible civil war—a tremendous revolution—a fiery deluge and many other things that will exist no more The victorious party of the war has erected a reconstruction of the Union on new Constitutional guarantees and by using the example from the new sanctuary of those treacherous Southern teachers and imposters that defiled and brought down fire and ruin upon the old one They are to be excluded and the Southern States are to have a new lease of life and prosperity under new leaders new ideas and new party organizations So in the North the Copperhead Peace Democrats of the war are dead, and will soon be buried, as a political party

We are now done hearing of the Union as it was ' The Copperheads though slow to learn anything have at last learned enough not to frame any more platforms on that idea Negro suffrage is likely to be their catchword

STATE ITEMS

The Corvallis Gazette has begun its fourth volume W B Carter its editor and publisher makes it a very readable paper

We see by Eastern papers that Senator Williams of the State made effective Union speeches in New York and other States during the late campaign He is one of our next advocates of the principles of the Union party than Senator Willia s

A dispatch dated Washington November 5th says The Commissioner of the General Land Office has received returns from Roseburg and Oregon City Oregon showing that during September last 7,768 acres of the public lands were disposed of the greater portion for actual settlement.

The stage from Canyon City arrived at the Dalles on Friday evening The roads are in a bad condition owing to the late rains The Indians are still committing depredations on the road The last week a pack train belonging to Messrs McCleskey & Cressap was stolen about one mile from Camp Watson The men did not at first believe the Indians had stolen the animals owing to their close proximity to Camp Watson but were soon convinced of the fact from the signs in the neighborhood Col Baker as soon as the robbery was reported to him sent a detachment of soldiers in pursuit of the Indians and we feel satisfied that they will be overhauled We quote from the Mountaineer

The railroad from Atlanta, Georgia, to Chattanooga Tennessee with the exception of a few miles below Marietta, has been put in thorough running order

MOONOTYPES.—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL 59 First street, (Postoffice block) are informed that Prof Draper of New York has again succeeded in obtaining another photograph of the Moon This remarkable occurrence exhibits one of the wonders of the art While the most scientific men of the age are engaged in great photographic experiments the above gentlemen continue in the front rank as PICTURE-takers. Evidence of this can be seen at all hours, at their GALLERY

THE CALIFORNIA MAIL.—Business men and the public in general are very much pleased that the mail between Portland and San Francisco during the winter months, will be carried by steamer which is a great convenience to the public and in many cases will be as great a benefit as it is to know that KOHN & FISHEL, at the ST LOUIS STORE, receive their wares direct from manufacturers and therefore are enabled to sell all kinds of clothing Gents Shirts Boots, and everything in their line at lower rates than can be purchased elsewhere

POLICE COURT.—Judge Caleb Reed will be engaged this morning in hearing the following cases, the parties having been arrested Saturday night and Sunday morning

Julius Bird, a contraban, arrested, for disorderly and insolent conduct

Misses Hollister, Martha Stoltz, Mary Glusham and Mary Kerrer, most of them parties who have figured in the Recorder's Court before, were arrested for disorderly conduct—fighting and beating Barbara Miller, at the house of Jim Hollister.

John Dougherty was arrested for an assault and battery upon a man named Skannon He is also charged with having entered the same man, after being arrested and charged with the same offence, and prosecuted on behalf of the State

Patrick Downey is up this time for vagrancy

Bridget Mcharged with being drunk and lying in the street.

Jim Palmore, Berry South, George Williams and Albert Thomas, Ethiopian gamblers, are charged with violating the statutes by playing the game of monte, in the room of the Lira saloon on Alder street The police had a description of this den but were unable to catch the fellows in the act till Saturday night at a late hour, when they effected it in the following manner Officer Brannan went to the front to prevent an escape in that way, while officers Ward and Townsend went to the rear of the house through a china house Upon reaching the rear they secured the covies through a window and went in, but the presiding darkey had made his "lay out" and the others had their money down, they made a sad mix and nipped the offenders in the very bud of crime, the dealer being taken with a card half drawn The officers appealed to the officers to let them off as it was the first time they had ever been caught and, as one of them said, "just a little game for amusement, ash, and only a few dollars any way The officers couldn't see it in that light and marched the party to the jail

ARRESTED.—A young man named Adams who has been for some time a clerk with Messrs Moussdorffer & Bro., left their store on Friday, taking with him about $200 of their property, consisting of $40 in legal tenders $160 in specie, and the balance in gold. Thirty dollars of the amount was overdrawn salary It is ascertained he had also disposed of some goods without accounting for them to the drawer He is said to have been in the city at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of Friday, and may be visiting somewhere in the vicinity yet, as nothing can be heard of him in any direction in which inquiries have been made by telegraph Adams was a young man of very affable and gentlemanly manner, had evidently traveled a good deal both in this country and Europe, and was said to be the sort of man to ingratiate himself into favor and confidence with those in the confidence line

The Messrs M think they have got off cheaply well, considering the evident accomplishments of the young man in the confidence line

COUNTY COURT. SHATTUCK, JUDGE.—Since our last report, the following proceedings have been had in this court:

Mitchell & Dolph vs. Stephen Coffin; report of referees confirmed and judgment entered against defendant for $2,198 93 cts and $1,203 63 greenbacks; action on account and for $150 currency Costs.

Isaac Gerard vs. John H. Perry; action on account; judgment for $137 currency and for $205, coin

Cyrus Noell vs. H. Hoback; appeal from Anderson, J P; action on account, for $16; jury trial and verdict for plaintiff, $6 and costs; motion for new trial

In the case of P. R. Murphy vs O N Co., judgment affirmed by Supreme Court, $60; appeal taken by defendants

State vs. Ah Hoy, convicted some days since of murder in the first degree; new trial granted and case continued to next term.

State vs. John Dougherty; motion for new trial and arrest under the verdict of jury overruled.

BUSINESS MEN.—At the meeting of the Willamette Valley Agricultural Society on Saturday night on the occasion of receiving their new charter, a committee was appointed to make arrangements for a grand reception ball on the Eve of New Years. On the following day, New Years, the Eugene Hotel will be open all day for visitors who may be desirous of making the carriage and enjoying the social hospitalities of the company. The committee's programme will appear during the week.

THE DREDGER.—Superintendent Walker informs us that work with the dredger will be resumed this morning, the river having fallen about two feet If the present cold snap should continue, there will be no further trouble about high water, as the sources of the streams are probably frozen, but there may be some apprehension of a freeze-up, in which case the dredger will be hauled up to the dock for the winter.

NEW DAYS FOR THE STATE.—The late Legislative Assembly passed an Act authorizing the Secretary of State to rent, for the use of his office, a fire and burglar proof safe, of capacity sufficient to contain the public records and papers, of which a considerable mass had accumulated The Secretary has made the purchase and the safe, a very large one—arrived here by the Orpheus.

A RUSH FOR PASSAGE.—Capt Kelly of the Montana informed us at 2 o'clock, yesterday, that every available berth for passage to San Francisco, by that ship, was already taken, at that hour. We hear that the same was true of the Oriflamme, and yet there must be a large list of people desiring passage, who must, per force, wait for the Pacific.

INCREASE STATE.—The letter of instructions from Postal Agent Brooks to Postmaster Randall of this city, directs that all mail matter, whether papers or letters, to be delivered South of Portland, marked to go "by steamer," will be sent that way All through documentary and paper mail is included in the arrangement for steamer carriage.

TO JOIN HIS COMPANY.—Lieut. A. P. Green, 2d battalion, 14th Infantry, arrived on the Oriflamme, en route to join his company, "H," at Fort Boise. Lieut Green was "raised" to the 15th Regiment New York Vol. Engineers as Captain and Brevet Lieut. Colonel, and distinguished himself in laying the pontoon bridges at Fredericksburg.

TAKEN OUT BY MISTAKE.—A portion of the Fire Department turned out on Saturday evening in response to the alarm of fire, caused by the blundering manner in which the bell-rope of Willamette No. 1 rang the bell The call was designed only for that company which had a special

RAILROAD TRACK.—The authorities have had the two large horse trees which stood on the South-east corner of the Court House block, transplanted to the front of the building on either side of the walk. The change of location will add materially to the appearance of things there I fear.

PASSENGER-DEPOT.—The Alert did not arrive at Eugene City last evening, in consequence of waiting at Corvallis for the Echo from Eugene City She brought the mails and a large number of passengers from the upper Willamette, but no freight.

FROM OREGON CITY.—The Alert brought down, on Saturday, 3000 sacks flour, 300 sacks wheat, 1080 boxes apples, 8 boxes eggs, 22 sacks feed, 0 bales woolen goods, 1 bbl., 3 coops chickens, 9 boxes grapes, 8 half barrels butter, 3 coops turkeys, and 3 kegs cider.

CIRCUIT COURT.—The Circuit Court adjourned on Saturday to the 17th inst. There are about seventy-five chancery and law cases yet on the docket. The Court has been in session just four weeks.

BAZAAR PHRASE.—See McCormick's new advertisement of Holiday presents. He is prepared to give away stock, upon being recompensed with proper value.

BALL AT ST. HELENS.—A ball is to be given at St. Helens on the 20th inst, under the superintendence of Masons, for the benefit of the Masonic Lodge at that place See the Vancouver Register.

THE TRADE AT OREGON CITY.—The Enterprise says. Mr. Dodge has been instructed to open an office in Oregon City for the purpose of transacting men for the Indian trade.

THE "ORIFLAMME."—This steamer arrived about twenty-four hours after the Oriflamme. She put off about nine tons of freight at Astoria, and lay up at Woodey Island seven and a half hours during Friday night.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—At the sale on Saturday, by the Sheriff of the estate of Peter McQuade, Richardson, auctioneer, two lots on Robinson's Hill, South of Yamhill, sold for $650.

"TAKEN A JOKE."—The Vancouver Register announces the selling of "a high-toned lady's veil" We hope the "high-toned lady" may recover it.

BENEFIT.—The ladies of the Presbyterian Church will hold a public benefit in the vestry of the church on Tuesday evening, December 11th.

LIKELY TO SUCCEED.—The person who writes the locals of the Herald, is in a fair way to succeed in his efforts to obtain the editorial style of his chief

THE PAPER MILL.—Maj Davenport of this city has been employed as foreman of the work at the paper mill at Oregon City.

FOR THE WOOLEN FACTORY.—The Oregon City Woolen Factory has 22 cases of merchandize by the Oriflamme

BURGLARY.—Several attempts at burglary at Oregon City are alluded to, are mentioned by the Enterprise.

HOSE, HOSE.—The Vancouver Engine Co No 1, has lately received a new alarm bell.

A PUZZLER.—an who is in the habit of getting his Clothes at Cash sold into Barman Bros last evening, and requested them to give him a pair of pants on dick, yes, said Barman, on one condition " Name it, that you can tell me why your request is like the back of my neck! "I cannot give it up." "Well, it is because I can't see it.

EXCURSION TO SAN FRANCISCO OVER TWO DOLLARS.—The Oriflamme advertises to take passengers to San Francisco for $2. Well Bros., not to be out-done in liberality, offer tickets entitling the holders to a suit of fine clothes, or the same amount in fancy dress goods, at equally reduced rates.

TRY KENDALL'S Pulmonary Syrup, and you will never of afterwards wish to be without it It is one of the best remedies known.

Board of Delegates.—Regular meeting this evening at 7 o'clock precisely.

Ristori's Lady Macbeth

[From the New York Tribune, October 24th.]

Ever since the modern invention of criticism Lady Macbeth has been one of the favorite apples of discord That the cleverest thinkers of the past should so fight over this "splendid fiend" is only one of the many strange things at which it is useless to marvel The human mind in its best estate acquaints one with strange vagaries Lady Macbeth is 'naturally cruel, says Cumberland she is 'invariably savage," declares Professor Richardson she is a female fury " echoes Schlegel, here is a "pure demoniac firmness, writes Forster in his essays "Lady Macbeth is merely dates.ed,' writes Dr Johnson And Campbell, from whom we naturally expect greater enlightenment doubts that the poet ever meant us to conceive Lady Macbeth more than a mere piece of august atrocity, and is persuaded that Shakspeare never intended her 'for anything better than a character of supernatural depravity, and a being, with all her decorum and force of mind, naturally cold and remorseless " She is a sort of sister of Milton's Lucifer " She shows a conscience haunted indeed by terrors, but not penitent, for she still adheres to her godless old grounds of comfort that Banquo is in his grave." She had been as to it, why? As the only bit of consolation she can offer Macbeth "What is done cannot be undone " the dying woman says to the partner of her guilt, but to herself what does she murmur? "The Thane of Fife had a wife, where is she now?" "Here's the smell of the blood still ! all of the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand, oh! oh! oh!" She dies overpowered by the sense of guilt, and Campbell calls her "a remorseless! Yet at the same time he can declare that Lady Macbeth was Mrs Siddon's master piece "It was an era in one's life to have seen her in it. She was tragedy personified * * * The moment she seized the part she identified her image with it in the minds of this living generation " But how, arguing from Campbell's standpoint, could Mrs Siddons have been the lady Macbeth when her conception of the character as entirely differed from this of her biographer? "If parast quit fait de la grosse sans le savoir ' He acknowledges the correctness of Mrs. Siddons' idea without apparently knowing it!

Hazlitt tells the truth, but not the whole truth To Mrs Siddons and Mrs Jameson we go for comfort, and find it. The spirit of Shakspeare had descended upon them, and through them we see the real character of one of the greatest characters in dramatic literature, according to their interpretation, which is the only one we have any sympathy with Lady Macbeth is grand in mind, beautiful in person, first a woman and then a queen! Naturally prone to what is noble, ambition temporarily unnerves her Conscious of her own great intellectual powers, especially conscious of that "milk of human kindness" which would deter Macbeth from "catching the nearest way," calls upon "murdering ministers" for superhuman strength, that Macbeth may be king and she the partner of his greatness Much dwelling on one idea has made her a monomaniac, she forgets all tenderness in the "hurly burly" of terrible plotting, yet how quickly it returns when the foul deed is done! Conscience makes Macbeth a coward only to drive him to new crime and final desperation, while she, dear est chuck, bears the burden of two guilty souls in one—most womanly fashion!—without complaint, making no confession but to her own soul, and, broken hearted, dying as she had lived—alone! With Macbeth first comes thought of crime Cast in a grander mold, Lady Macbeth takes up the thought and makes it fact, but Macbeth required no partner to dye his hands a second and third time in blood She divines but does not instigate—she supports, she does not impel The monsantary fiend soon becomes a wife, if not a woman, and we protest against the common custom of crowning Lady Macbeth with the guilt of her husband. We have seen many theatrical Lady Macbeths, and invariably to our own disheartenment We have beheld what Mrs. Jameson calls "the common place idea of a fierce cruel woman brandishing a couple of daggers and exciting her husband to butcher a poor old King We have seen termagants tearing passion to tatters and shaking Macbeth to pieces at the same time. We have wondered whether Shakspeare's bones did not rattle in their grave at such an unjustifiable sacrilege and then again we have wondered whether we should ever live to see justice done to a universally misinterpreted character Ristori has put an end to our wondering We went, we saw, we were conquered Whether Ristori has read Mrs. Siddon's memoranda or not we cannot say All we do know is that her conception of the character coincides with that of the great English woman, and that for the first time we have seen Shakspeare's Lady Macbeth

Ristori's entrance with Macbeth's letter in hand is quiet, as it should be, and in her appearance she fills up our idea of the beauty and nobility which is absolutely necessary to a faithful portraiture of the character Her dress is as lovely as it is chaste, and characteristic Her picturing of Macbeth's nature is calmly and philosophically given, her appeal to the "spirits that tend on mortal thought" as dignified in its passion as it can be, and there is a tenderness in the tone with which she hails "Great Glamis! Thane of Cawdor," that we have never heard before She makes us feel the woman through the ambitious "top full of direst cruelty." One of Mrs Siddon's great points—and one of the very few Campbell has in any way referred to—was not her rendering of "he all but murder'd her!" We watched Ristori closely at this moment, but the Italian gives no equivalent for our strong SAXON She can do nothing with it, but she does much with and is unimaginably powerful when, with the valor of her tongue she pours her poisonous advice into Macbeth a willing ear There is an unequaled significance in her "Leave all the rest to me," and her exit thereupon With Duncan's entrance the consummate acting of Lady Macbeth begins, and in Ristori we behold a "fair and noble hostess," who receives her King in his charming grace and bids his attendants welcome as though high station with its amiable condescension was her birthright You feel the power under the velvet hand and beaming face You realize it fully when, entering unperceived by Macbeth, she listens to the compunctuous prickings of his conscience, smiles as though 'twere as she had expected, and quickly looks that fierce determination which will carry all before it Ristori is no more energetic in the succeeding scene, with its upbraiding, its disgust at Macbeth's wavering purpose, and the terrible declaration of what she would do had she so sworn, than is called for by the situation It is enough—no more nor less Her action at the close of this act, after Macbeth's exclamation,

"Oh, never shall sun that morrow see."

"False face must hide what the false heart doth know"

is stupendous There is more meaning in the exit of that plotting pair than we had ever expected to see given upon the stage What Shakspeare has here left to the imagination Ristori makes palpable.

As is well known, Mrs Siddons gave successively three readings of the words we fail "At first," says Mr Jameson a quick, contemptuous interrogation, 'We fail' Afterward, with the note of admiration 'We fail! and an accent of indignant astonishment laying the principal emphasis on the word we—we fail! Lastly she fixed on what I am convinced is the true reading—we fail—with the simple period, modulating her voice to a deep, low, resolute tone, which settled this issue at once, as though she had said if we fail, why then we fail, and all is over This last reading is carried out by what follows

"But screw your courage to the sticking place, and we'll not fail "

That but makes it absolutely necessary that the intonation on a full period should be given Ristori makes of it an indignant exclamation as though failure were an impossibility but let it be told that the translation is such as to render this the only possible interpretation Fallir Ricardi si non coraggio, o se non eredi, no potremo Fallir noi."

The translator and not Ristori, is at fault.

In the murder scene Ristori is very fine and her "business" throughout is certainly most admirable. Her impulsive action in putting her hand over Macbeth's mouth when he enters with the bloody daggers and rends the air with his cries—which Signor Giosh does in approved flowery fashion and loud enough to bring Duncan to life again—is wonderfully effective We think however, that Ristori fails to make the most of the moment when she exists to gild the faces of the grooms withall ' But she is quite great enough when forcing Macbeth off to bed For facial expression we know nothing finer than Ristori in the last scene of this act Introduced as in the original play, she has but a few words to speak, All the point, all the excuse for Lady Macbeth's presence is her play of features while listening to Macbeth a relation of the killing of Duncan's chamberlains Ristori speaks not a word she says nothing Her eyes discourse eloquently though Macbeth Macduff and Banquo have the stage our gaze is riveted on the silent ought robed woman Ristori has created this scene Shakspeare has done nothing for her In the third act the change in Lady Macbeth's character takes place and Ristori draws the line well and strongly

Gentle my lord Sleek o'er your rugged looks
Be bright and jovial among your guests to night

It is no longer the triumphant duchess of the previous scene It is the guilty loving wife—loving as Lady Macbeth would love—who would drive from Macbeth's mind all thought of the past nor show that crime cannot exist but to her Macbeth becomes positive she negative At the banquet, Ristori in her superbly regal costume is a fit partner feast to the eyes than that to which her guests sit down! She is all that becomes a queen, nor when Macbeth takes leave of his senses at sight of Banquo's ghost is she more scornful in her manner than would be to gain control over his reason 'Are you a man? Fear for her husband not for herself puts these scorching words into Lady Macbeth's mouth, which burn as they proceed from Ristori's The transition from her "Fie, for shame!" to the amiable smile of the hostess is consummately done Her return to her real self upon the guests departure her gentle counseling, look back the season of all nature, sleep " and the unspeakable pathos which she puts into the action of laying Macbeth's hand upon her shoulder are not to be forgotten

Of that short sleeping scene which in twenty two lines is a greater sermon than man ever listened to from any pulpit, we can say little of what we feel Ristori makes it the sad solemn, retributive vision that it ought to be She makes every look every word, every gesture tell It is a broken hearted woman on her way to the grave There is no gasping, but just sufficient hardness of breathing to be sure fai in effect and to denote approaching dissolution Her sighs are sighs indeed They rend the heart of the audience as well as her own, and her final exit is greater in power, yet freer from the melodramatic, than anything we have yet witnessed In Lady Macbeth, Ristori shows her intellect, for Lady Macbeth is purely ideal There is no past history to give the clue to her character—there is no Mrs Siddons living from whom to receive suggestions In a poor Italian translation Ristori has made the part her own and we are grateful to her for an impersonification which brings Shakspeare nearer to us than ever! By this noble conception Ristori proves that genius is of no country

The Wind River Party—Fight with the Indians—Names of the Killed

Mr William Strickland, one of the party with Jeff Standifer, on the Wind river prospecting expedition, furnishes us with a detailed statement of their difficulty with the Indians, and the loss of men killed! As many of the party are well known in this community, this short sketch of their venture may be of interest to our readers

Mr Strickland says that when the party reached the Wind river mountains, they numbered sixty eight men About the 1st of September, as they approached the head waters of the Big Bow river Bruce Smith with a party of eleven men left the main body to prospect, and agreed to join them on the head waters of Big Bow The main party proceeded on their way and came to a stream they supposed to be Big Bow, but they afterwards ascertained it was one of the branches of the main stream There they camped and waited for Bruce Smith and his party to join them In the meantime Smith and party had passed around the head of this branch and struck the main stream and camped One of the party had gone out alone in search of the main party, or to see if he could find their trail On his return, as he approached his camp he discovered that they had been attacked by Indians and the fight was still going on He was not in a position to determine definitely the result but he thought the whites had scattered and taken to the brush, and the Indians were pursuing and hunting down the fugitives, and it is supposed all the party perished as none have been found or heard of since

The names of those lost are Bruce Smith Edward Riley, a painter (formerly residents of this county) David Conklin, Wm Strong, Geo Ackley son, and a man called Pike—the names of the three others not remembered

The survivors then made his way back and joined the main party, who immediately started to search for and restore their comrades While still in search of the lost men and on the Big Bow river they were attacked by about three hundred Indians on the 16th of September The Indians came upon the camp about daylight, the boys, seeing a fight was inevitable, made the best selection they could of the ground and waited their attack Jeff Standifer, with twenty men, stood guard over the horses, and the balance of the party thirty seven men in two squads under the lead of Irish Humason (brother of Judge Humason of this place) and Mr Benfield made the fight The Indians commenced the fight about ten o'clock A M, which lasted about two hours in this fight Col Rice and Wm Smith were killed, and Bostwick, Harry Ackleson and John T vault severely wounded, several others were slightly wounded

Mr Strickland says nine Indians were known to be killed, and many wounded The whites were generally armed with Henry and Wesson rifles, and did good execution A number of their horses were killed and wounded in the engagement, The party finding themselves too weak to maintain their ground, struck out of that country to Green river, and when our informant left were about fitting out to go to Arizona or Mexico —Mon Gauneer

"Official Correspondence"

The following letter speaks for itself—

JACKSONVILLE, OREGON
Nov 27th 1866

Mr C MASON—Corresponding Sec'y Resident Executive Com—Dear Sir Your circular dated Washington, Oct 9th, 1866, is just received and its contents duly considered

In reply, I must respectfully decline taking any part in the great educational enterprise proposed by your committee Because,

First, It has been demonstrated since the date of your circular that the "public mind" needs not the hard earnings of a few thousand postmasters to teach them how to exercise the noble right of freemen, and to rebuke demagogism, even though found under the purple robes of authority As a proof of this, I need only refer you to the royal mandates emanating from the 'public mind" at the late elections

Second I have no means of knowing whether Charles Knapp, esq, has given good and sufficient bonds for the faithful distribution of the money he expects to receive from so great a sale of postmasters

Third, Whatever may be the market value of postmasters in the Atlantic States, a little country post office is by far too small a price for this commodity in Oregon, where native gold is found in every mountain top and valley, in every rill and river, and where gold and silver coin is the basis of all commercial transactions

Assuring you sir, that I have already done my part in support of Andrew Johnson, (I voted for him) a support which in all probability you never gave him, and, consequently, will have one the less sin to answer for in the great day of reckoning I subscribe myself, very respectfully

IMPROVED TELEGRAPHIC CABLE.—The New York Times of October 26th has the following

John B DeMorat, of Philadelphia, has invented an improved telegraphic cable for which superior electric power is claimed The invention consists in the combination of a series of separate cylindrical conductors one within the other, and each insulated, forming one cable through which a number of different dispatches equal to the number of tubes may be transmitted simultaneously The spiral structure of the tubes gives great elasticity without danger of breaking the connection the destruction of one cylinder would not affect the use of the remainder The cable is said to be lighter more flexible, and more powerful and durable than the best now in use Letters patent have been granted for the invention, both in the United States and England

This is to certify that I John B Sullivan was blind for over nine years and I tried all means of a cure and had many doctors and all of no effect and I spent all the means I had Finally I had to become a county charge and when I was taken to Dr G W Brown and he started my case to him and in a few weeks he at once commenced to treat my eyes and now I am well and can command all those that are suffering with disease of the eyes to call on Dr G W Brown The reason why I do this is to let suffering humanity know where they can be cured. THOMAS LIVINGSTON

This is to certify that I was blind for over four months and almost blind for one year and a half I tried several eye doctors but received no benefit I had almost given my case up as hopeless when fortunately I heard of Dr G W Brown I went to Salem and he restored to my sight perfectly and I can say that I can see as well as ever and gave no treatment I soon began to recover, and in a short time I was perfectly cured I do this in justice to one who rescued me from a fate worse than death and also for the benefit of those who are laboring under the like affliction that they may know where they can get relief It is now about eight months since my eyes were cured and they still remain good I can see to read the finest print without difficulty and my eyes can bear the strongest light without pain
